

Johnson Taking Rights, Poverty Talks to N.Y.

By FRANK CORMIER

NEW YORK (AP)—President Johnson carried to New York today the same appeals he voiced repeatedly this week to audiences in the Deep South: Promote civil rights and wipe out poverty.

After two days in Appalachia and the South, Johnson was armed with a speech identical in thought—even in phrasing—to those he delivered below the Mason-Dixon Line.

"I want to say in New York today what I said in Atlanta yesterday," the President declared. Remarks prepared for his late-morning appearance at the 50th birthday party of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers Union, AFL-CIO.

Johnson returned to Washington Friday after 32 hours of barnstorming through six states. He showed no sign of fatigue, which was fortunate in view of today's itinerary.

The speech to the clothing workers, in Singer Bowl at the New York World's Fair, was the first of five appearances.

Johnson also agreed to dedicate the Venezuelan Pavilion at the Fair, have lunch at Roosevelt Raceway, Westbury, N.Y., with a delegation of Nassau County leaders, then dedicate the John F. Kennedy Cultural Center at the old Mitchell Air Force Base on Long Island.

Tonight Johnson addresses a Democratic fund-raising dinner in Convention Hall at Atlantic City, N.J. It is in this hall that Democrats expect to nominate him for a full term as president in August.

Johnson told the clothing workers they had helped him in the past, adding, "And who knows—it may be that you can help me out again, sometime soon."

Soon, it turned out, meant right now. "First," said the President, "We must stand together on the civil rights bill. I want to say in New York today what I said in Atlanta yesterday: 'Because the Constitution requires it, and justice demands it, we must protect the constitutional rights of all our citizens, regardless of race, religion or the color of their skin.'"

Johnson said that "just as you and I stand together in this cause, we must also join forces in the war on poverty."

It was virtually a carbon copy of the President's exhortations to Southern audiences. The only departure was the addition of a section dealing with labor legislation.

Said Johnson: "We must extend the Fair Labor Standards Act to include more than two million workers who now lack this basic protection."

"We must establish federal benefit standards for state unemployment insurance programs—and a federal supplementary program to extend benefits for an additional period of up to 26 weeks."

Says James Walker Not Psychotic

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—James Dean Walker, 25, of Reno, Nev., has been "fighting the world" for years, but is not psychotic, a psychiatrist testified in Walker's trial here Thursday.

Walker is being tried in Pulaski County Circuit Court on a charge of first degree murder in the shooting April 16, 1963, of Patrolman Jerrell P. Vaughan.

Vaughan was slain in a gun battle about three miles southeast of Little Rock on Arkansas 130.

Dr. Elizabeth B. Fletcher of Little Rock said Walker was insecure, unstable and hostile, felt rejected, "an outsider, compulsive, resentful, wanting approval."

He needs prolonged treatment, she said. "Dr. Charles Taylor of the State Hospital staff, a state rebuttal witness to Dr. Fletcher, said Walker probably was not mentally ill at the time Vaughan was killed."

Ex-Clerk Pleads Guilty to Stealing

FORT SMITH, Ark. (AP)—Former Sebastian County Clerk Herman Jones pleaded guilty in circuit court here Thursday to malfeasance of office.

Judge Paul Wolfe sentenced him to three months in jail and fined him $100. The fine and sentence were suspended.

Jones was arrested April 17 and charged with using $4,065 in public funds for his own purposes. The money was repaid.

Prosecutor Lyman Mikel asked that the charge be reduced from misuses of public funds to malfeasance in office.

Insured Man Shot Pilot of Airliner

CONCORD, Calif. (AP)—The FBI has established that a heavily insured passenger apparently shot the pilot of an airliner just before it crashed near Concord Thursday, killing all 44 aboard. The plane was cruising at 5,000 feet on a flight from Reno to San Francisco when the shooting occurred.

The man's name and the beneficiary of his newly purchased policy were not immediately disclosed.

An informed source said the FBI had traced ownership of a powerful revolver found in the wreckage to a man who took out an insurance policy in excess of $50,000 on his life just before boarding the plane.

An FBI laboratory check in Washington, the source said, determined that the revolver, a .357 Smith & Wesson Magnum, contained six spent cartridges that had been fired recently.

The source confirmed that a tape recorder found in the wreckage carried the voice of pilot Ernest A. Clark, saying, "My God, I've been shot."

Then came a scream, just before the twin-engine Pacific Air Lines plane went into its dive from a mile up that ended with an explosion in pastureland southeast of Concord.

Speculation arose that the gun wielder had lost heavily at the Reno gambling tables. Spokesmen for the two largest casinos in Reno said there was no indication of any unusually heavy losses by a patron the night before the crash.

The FBI did not give the exact amount of machine-dispensed insurance taken out by the owner of the revolver.

Another mystery to be solved was whether the passenger shot only Clark or also shot copilot Raymond E. Andres Jr. and stewardess Marjorie E. Schafer, the other members of the crew.

Deputy coroner Mal Whalin said a human bone found at the scene contained a hole which could have been made by a bullet. He said the bone was not from a skull but declined to say what part of a body it came from.

Ten investigative teams from the Civil Aeronautics Board in Washington as well as FBI forces were at the scene, 40 miles east of San Francisco. Military Police stood guard duty.

Space Industries Keep Up Boom

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Only the acquisition of space-age industries can keep Arkansas' industrial boom going, the executive director of the Commission on Co-ordination of Higher Educational Finance said here Thursday.

Director E. L. Angell said electronics, aircraft and automation industries are needed to provide industrial impetus for the next decade.

He said Arkansas has now passed the "industrial frontier." More and better education will help attract and fill jobs of space-age industries, he said.

Mysterious Crippling Disease, Multiple Sclerosis, Has Stricken Over Half Million

By Mary Anita Laster
Star Feature Writer

"I never dreamed it could happen to me," said each of the half million Americans stricken with the mysterious crippling disease known as multiple sclerosis.

A name like that can tie a person's tongue in knots, so the easier term MS is used in normal conversation. After all, tuberculosis was long ago shortened to TB so why not condense another "toughie" in the pronunciation department, to say nothing about an impossible spelling task!

Why bring up this sad subject at such a pleasant time of year between Mother's Day tomorrow, and Father's Day, June 21? This is the most logical time of year to learn about, discuss, and fight a disease that is the greatest cause of chronic disability among young adults, most of who are young mothers or young fathers.

First of all, you may want to know what is MS anyway? That's a good question, but we don't have a good answer. All that is known, for sure, is that the mystery that's MS is widespread and involves the central nervous system. Though it strikes person of all ages, it hits mainly young adults between the ages of 20 and 40. MS is usually progressive—getting worse each year, often causing paralysis. Many victims depend on canes, crutches or are forced into wheelchairs. Some become completely disabled.

Science and the American people together tirelessly seek the cause, effective treatments and a cure for MS. The National Multiple Sclerosis Society finances research in hospital, universities and medical centers. This year following a period of inactivity the Arkansas Central Chapter of the MS Society has been reorganized under the chairmanship of Allen Berry, Director of the War Memorial Stadium in Little Rock.

Locally, Mrs. Robert Moers is serving as Visitor Director in Hope and Hempstead County. That is, she is the personal contact between patients in her area and the central headquarters in Little Rock. You may be amazed to know that there are a dozen MS'ers in this immediate area. At last their problem is being brought to the attention of the public, and they seek understanding not merely sympathy.

There are six common symptoms of MS. While each one by itself does not necessarily mean MS, when three or more appear at the same time or successively medical advice should be sought. 1. Paralysis; 2. Seeing double; 3. Inability to talk clearly; 4. Staggering and falling; 5. Tremors of hands; 6. Lack of bladder or bowel control.

It is most fitting for "the MS Hope Chest," to be the same given to the voluntary funds contributed by the American people to finance research, fellowships and scholarships (for doctors), clinics, therapy and equipment (for needy patients). More is needed though and contributions could be addressed to: Arkansas Central Chapter; National M. S. Society; P. O. Box 3223, F. H. Station; Little Rock, Ark.

You can help step up the fight against MS by sending your contribution to the MS Hope Chest, a contribution that is deductible for income tax purposes. It will be greatly appreciated, for Hope is the whole purpose of giving for many MS'ers. I speak with the voice of experience for I have had MS for 16 years—exactly half my life.

Jap Pearl Harbor Envoy Dies at 86

By JOHN RODERICK
TOKYO (AP)—Adm. Kichisaburo Nomura, Japan's ambassador to the United States when his country attacked Pearl Harbor, died today after a long illness. He was 86.

Nomura and special envoy Saburo Kuroki received one of the stiffest tongue-lashings in diplomatic annals when they arrived at the State Department on Dec. 7, 1941 bringing Japan's rejection of the latest U.S. peace formula. Bombs had just begun falling on the Pacific outpost.

Seething with anger, Secretary of State Cordell Hull kept Nomura and Kuroki waiting 15 minutes in an anteroom.

They entered Hull's office smiling and bowing and handed him the Japanese note. He read it slowly, without betraying his fury, even at the sentence, "The immutable policy of Japan is to promote world peace."

Then Hull exploded, telling the two shocked envoys: "In all my 50 years of public service, I have never seen a document that was more crowded with infamously falsehoods and distortions—infamously falsehoods and distortions on a scale so huge that I never imagined until today that any government on this planet was capable of uttering them."

Nomura, who had been assigned to Washington nine months earlier, repeatedly denied any advance knowledge of the attack which brought the United States into World War II. "I must have been the worst-informed ambassador in history," he said on a visit to the United States in 1953.

U.S. officials generally accepted Nomura's denial and did not press for his prosecution as a war criminal.

A tall, soft-spoken career navy officer, Nomura was drafted for the diplomatic assignment because he was known in Washington as an advocate of peace with the United States.

In the postwar years, he was a business executive. He was elected to the Japanese Senate in 1959, and he opposed the leftist campaign against the U.S.-Japan Security Treaty.

His health failed in recent years and he was under treatment for a brain ailment. He is survived by his widow and a son.

Pistol Found in Wreckage of Plane

CONCORD, Calif. (AP)—A cocked and loaded pistol found in the trial of wreckage left by a Pacific Air Lines plane has brought the FBI into the investigation of Thursday's crash.

All 44 persons aboard the turbo-prop airliner were killed. A quarter-mile of metal fragments, a garbled tape recording, the gun and bits of the victims' bodies were all the evidence that Civil Aeronautics Board investigators had to work with.

The plane, a morning flight from Reno, Nev., went down after stopping in Stockton, Calif., just 40 miles east, San Francisco, its destination.

Seconds before the airliner plunged nose first to earth, a garbled message came over its radio but was lost in a screech of static and electronic squeals. The Federal Aviation Agency had a tape recording of it that investigators hoped would provide some clue.

The FBI took charge of a cocked and loaded 38-caliber revolver. At first it was believed to belong to a San Francisco police inspector, George Lacau, who with his wife, Betty, was a passenger on the plane.

A check in police records, however, showed that none of the three revolvers registered by Lacau had the serial numbers of the weapon found in the wreckage.

"Our captains are authorized to carry a gun," said a Pacific Air Lines spokesman. "But none has ever done so to our knowledge."

Sheriff Walter Young asked the FBI disaster squad to use their special fingerprint techniques to make positive identification of the dead. Coroner Dr. William Bogart refused to allow relatives to view the remains.

"There's just nothing left to show them," explained Dr. Bogart. "No one would be recognizable."

"We saw the plane coming in low, flying in kind of a glide, with its left engine not turning at all," said David Silva, 21, who was washing his car when the airliner came in over his house.

"The right engine was making a terrible roar, revving hard," Silva continued. "Then the plane vanished over the top of a little hill, and at that instant we heard this tremendous explosion, like a sonic boom."

Aboard were about a dozen persons who had taken advantage of an offer by Reno Casinos to gamble all night in exchange for a refund of their plane fares.

At San Francisco airport, Dale Stopp wept. Years ago he lost both legs under a train. His mother, Clara Stopp, and his wife, Judy, had helped him back to an almost normal life. The two women were aboard the plane.

Powell Gets Another Court Delay

NEW YORK (AP)—Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, D-N.Y., has been granted another delay in answering a $46,500 judgment against him, but a State Supreme Court justice showed irritation at the failure of the Harlem leader to show up.

The judgment against Powell is held by Esther James, Harlem widow. About 15 months ago a jury awarded Mrs. James $211,500 damages because Powell in a 1960 television broadcast called her a "bag woman"—gratuitous collector for police. The State Division reduced the award.

Powell has neither paid the $46,500 judgment nor submitted to a court-ordered examination of his assets to determine whether he can pay it.

Supreme Court Justice Arthur Markewich has ruled Powell in contempt for failing to appear.

Powell's attorney, George D. Covington, said Wednesday the press of Powell's congressional duties prevented him from responding to an order to show cause why he should not be arrested.

Daughter Is Helping Out Dad on Tour

By FRANCES LEWINE
ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—The father-daughter team of Lynda and Lyndon Johnson has been seeking recruits for a war against poverty in six states with touches of humor and tales of ancestors.

They have joshed each other and, in the process, exhorted applauding thousands to lend "heart and hand" in eliminating poverty from the land.

Side by side, the 55-year-old President, wearing a Texas hat, and his tall, 20-year-old daughter barnstormed farms and towns Thursday by plane, helicopter and car.

When President Johnson climbed on the back of a convertible at Knoxville, Tenn., his smiling daughter kicked off her shoes and joined him to talk to a crush of students from the University of Tennessee.

And Johnson time and again—with hoarse throat toward the end—reminded audiences that he came from humble beginnings and knew poverty first-hand.

Sitting on the broken concrete steps of a tenant farmer's home at Rocky Mount, N.C., he said, "I was born the son of a tenant was born the son of a tenant farmer in a family of seven" and "my daddy worked on halves"—sharing profits with the landlord.

Johnson said that when his father died, "he left a hard-earned and frugally-saved $25."

The President declared that all he wanted for every family was "what my mother wanted for me, what every mother wants for her child—the chance for an honest living, an honorable job, and a decent future."

By the end of the long day, Lynda jokingly complained that her smooth-talking parent had "used all my lines about what I wanted you to do."

So, she said, "I just want to tell you that I agree with my father which is something that not all young people always do."

Lynda suggested a practical beginning for an antipoverty program: "If everybody would just try to teach one person," she said, "it would make considerable inroads" in the problems of illiteracy.

Johnson laughingly said his daughter was a school dropout because she cut college classes to come on the two-day trip. But Lynda contended it was "a cram course" in such things as sociology and economics and especially in "physical fitness, trying to keep up with my father."

Once when the President whispered to her, Lynda admonished aloud, "Stop coaching me, dad—I'll get me in trouble."

All in all, Lynda proved herself quite capable of following in veteran parents and she got the footsteps of her campaign

Wants State Jobs for Young Folks

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Gov. Orval E. Faubus said Thursday that he wanted state summer jobs to go first to young people in need of money for a family or education.

He said his office has been flooded with job requests, and he had told state department heads not to give each other's relatives first choice on the jobs.

Johnson Not Inclined Yet for Debates

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP)—Shortly before his death President John F. Kennedy said he would take on his Republican opponent in the 1964 presidential race in television-radio debates. So far President Johnson has declined to say what he will do.

It would have been easy for Kennedy, an old hand at it after his four debates with Vice President Richard M. Nixon in 1960. All of them did Kennedy good. And no Republican then in sight seemed likely to outdo him.

Johnson, with no experience in this kind of national encounter, gave this answer when asked about the debates at his Dec. 18 news conference.

"I will make those decisions at the time I am the nominee and in the light of the circumstances existing then. For the present I am not going to discuss any political matter."

He didn't stick to that absolutely. He has made some cracks about Republicans and practically everything he has done since has been a political matter in the sense of building up his voter appeal.

He's been so homey and down-to-earth and folksy and reassuring to so many people in so many fields of interest that he has created a picture of himself as a sort of national big daddy.

The public opinion polls indicate the people are eating it up. If he doesn't overdo it, no Republican candidate could possibly match him in public exposure since he's President and everything he does is news.

That raises the first question: Why, with this advantage, should he let an opponent, in one leap before the cameras and with one turn of the dial, enjoy the same spotlight with and perhaps do him damage by outdoing him?

The same question could have been asked about Kennedy, although not in 1960. Then Nixon was the national figure who had spent eight years as vice president building himself up. Kennedy was just a senator from Massachusetts.

But after the very first debate, in which many felt he had bettered Nixon, he had to be equated in the public mind with the vice president.

As President, by debating a Republican contender, Kennedy would have been granting his opponent the same kind of exposure he himself got in his set-to with Nixon. Why do it, then?

One guess is that Kennedy felt supremely confident about handling anyone the Republicans sent against him. If only for lack of experience, Johnson can't be sure he'd make out as well.

Through the fresh insights they'd get into Johnson and his opposition arguing the issues in 1964, voters would be able to reach more intelligent decisions about both of them.

But Johnson, like Kennedy, is a politician with a race to win and the main problem of how. That would be the primary consideration for both. That's a practical reason for Johnson wanting to wait till he sees what he's up against.

By campaign time Johnson may decide, danger or not, the debates are necessary.

For instance: To restore public acceptance through serious discussion if by then he has made some goofs in the presidency or suffered disfavor by too much running around and too much talking off the cuff.

Besides, he is thin-skinned. If he says he won't debate, the Republicans no doubt would try to needle him into changing his mind by attacking his reluctance to face his opponent.

There's a good reason now to think he might welcome the debates. He seemed a little uncertain of himself, starting out, but he seems to be developing so much confidence in his voter appeal that he is now unpredictable from hour to hour.

Reports Anti Castro Attacks Coming Soon

By BEN F. MEYER

WASHINGTON (AP)—Exile sources said today that attacks by anti-Castro Cubans on Communist Cuba appear probable at any moment.

Spokesmen for various exile action groups in the United States appeared unanimous in predicting commando assaults soon on Cuban soil.

They said such attacks before May 20—Cuba's independence anniversary—appear all but certain.

Significantly, various cities with large exile populations reported the disappearance of groups of young men during recent weeks.

U.S. officials said they knew nothing of any assault plans, but in exile sectors here and in Florida there seemed a conviction that something is about to occur.

The sources added that small scale attacks from anti-Communist groups within Cuba and without would be aimed at harassing Prime Minister Fidel Castro's dictatorship.

They said sabotage, infiltration, commando and guerrilla operations were contemplated. "What we hope to do," said one exile, "is to drive Castro and his Communist cohorts crazy and out of power."

In Washington, U.S. officials stressed that the government would have no part in any such attacks and would do everything possible to see that none originated on U.S. soil.

Robert J. McCloskey, State Department press officer, asked about reported plans for hit-and-run attacks, told reporters the United States is opposed to them.

Cuban exile groups said the attacks would be launched from non-U.S. areas.

They said commando type raiders and guerrilla forces have been training for weeks in Nicaragua and Costa Rica.

Man Found Guilty, Death Is Penalty

HARRISBURG, Ark. (AP)—Frank Harris, 57, of Jonesboro, was convicted of first degree murder here Thursday and sentenced to death in the electric chair.

The last death sentence levied by a Pointsett Circuit Court jury was in 1912, the year before the chair displaced hanging as the state's method of execution.

Harris was convicted of killing Mrs. Leonard Dever and four of her daughters the night of Dec. 20 at the Dever home at Trumann.

The ex-convict already had been sentenced to life in prison for the death of Mrs. Dever's husband.

The jury returned the verdict after deliberating 30 minutes. It made no recommendation in regard to punishment, but under Arkansas law this automatically sentenced Harris to death.

Defense attorney Bob McCourtney filed notice for a new trial. He said if it is turned down, the verdict will be appealed.

McCourtney had the jury polled on each of the five counts.

"Is that your finding?" each juror was asked.

Each time, each juror answered in a loud and clear voice: "Yes."

Harris showed no emotion when the verdict was read. His 17-year-old daughter wept. The defendant stared at the jurors intently as they were polled.

"I haven't killed anybody in my whole life," Harris said later. "God in heaven knows I haven't hurt anybody. I told my whole story to Mr. (Deputy Sheriff Pete) Van Horn, and he told it for me in court. I haven't hurt anybody. I feel I'll come clear."

Harris said a "30 minute verdict was awfully hasty."

Outside, Harris willingly posed for pictures with law enforcement officers.

Ronald Dever, 9, and Mary Dever, 6, who survived the fire that destroyed the Dever home, told conflicting stories of how their parents and sisters died.

Truman Is Feeling Fit in 80th Year

By RAYMOND J. CROWLEY

WASHINGTON (AP) — Harry S. Truman got a thunderous welcome back to the Senate on his 80th birthday today and was so overcome with emotion he could not make a speech.

The former president helped make history, however, by the few remarks he did make. He became the first ex-president to address the Senate during an official session in the chamber, under a rules change adopted last year.

"I'm a little overcome," he said, his voice choking. "This is one of the greatest things that has happened to me in my whole life." But he said, because of his emotion, he couldn't take advantage of the opportunity to make a speech.

However, he said, the rule adopted last October, sponsored by Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., entitling ex-presidents to address the chamber on "grave national problems" is a "great one."

Moving at a pace that would tax the strength of men many years his junior, the former president started his day with an impromptu news conference in which he predicted President Johnson will do as well in November as President Franklin D. Roosevelt did in 1963.

That was when Roosevelt carried all states except Maine and Vermont against Republican Alf Landon.

The prediction was one item in an impromptu news conference that interrupted his traditional before-breakfast walk—and cut it short—right in the middle of Farragut Square only three blocks from the White House.

Truman set out with the intention of strolling about two miles but found himself so surrounded by cameras, microphones and a tangle of electronic equipment wires that he came to a halt to field the questions of accompanying newsmen.

He discoursed on just about every subject from Russians to Republicans, then strolled back to Blair House, where he is staying as Johnson's guest, and headed from there for the Capitol and a breakfast reunion with old Senate colleagues.

Truman was still settling problems right and left as he did upon arrival Thursday. But he still had the worry that bothered him then.

The worry: What will Bess, the former first lady whom he left back home in Independence, Mo., think of his performance in Washington?

"She is always afraid," he said, "that I will insult somebody, I am not suppose to insult."

So far Truman, special guest of President Johnson and the nation, has avoided insulting anybody.

But he has given an elder statesman's advice on several problems including:

1. How long should a president work each day. Fourteen hours, Truman said flatly.

2. How can a president avoid being assassinated as he rides through crowds. "Put back the two Secret Service guards who used to ride on the rear bumper," Truman said.

Truman arrived from Independence Thursday in an Air Force plane, and quickly went to Johnson's defense on the handling of hound dogs. The president had got into some hot water recently by lifting "Him" and "Her" by the ears.

When a newsmen inquired whether that was the way to handle hounds, Truman asked: "Have you ever had any hounds?"

"No," the newsmen said. "Then what the hell are you hollering about?" Truman said. "That's the way to handle hounds."

Many events are on Truman's schedule today, including an off the cuff talk National Press Club and a dinner meeting with old buddies of the famous World War II Truman investigating committee.

But it is unlikely that any will surpass an event of Thursday when Truman got the Grand Golden Cross of Austria in the plush home of the Austrian ambassador.

Truman on this occasion proved himself adept at shifting from bourbon to champagne and back again without stripping a gear.

The ambassador Dr. Wilfried Platzer, presented him the magnificent decoration as both men stood under an oil painting of Archduchess Christine, favorite daughter of Empress Maria Theresa of the Hapsburgs.

The ambassador praised Truman for helping rebuild Austria after World War II and keep it free.

Last stop for Truman Thursday night was a dinner of the Malcolm took the gun from Domingo and got to his feet. "You mean it?" he asked quietly.

"Kill him," Domingo said. Malcolm stood with the gun hanging limply at his side, trying, as he had tried on the drive up the mountain with Clarke, to analyze his inner thoughts and feelings. But there was nothing inside him, it seemed; it was as if all his emotions and reactions were in a deliberate and willing state of suspension.

Malcolm raised his arm and pointed the muzzle of the revolver at Paco's forehead, and the silence in the room suddenly became oppressive and smothering. No one seemed to breathe. Clarke held his cigarette an inch from his lips, his eyes flicking between Malcolm and Paco, while Zaren stepped back a pace and crossed himself.

Paco began to whimper softly and the sound trembled against the heavy silence. The old man stood slowly and watched Malcolm with a mild appraising smile. Domingo looked closely at Malcolm. "You had a drink, pay for it."

Paco screamed like a woman. Malcolm aimed for a bead of sweat gleaming on his forehead. He increased the pressure of his finger, and saw the strain slowly whiten the knuckles of his hand.

When he pulled the trigger, the dry click was like a thunder clap in the straining silence. Domingo began to laugh boisterously. "You can do it, you will do it," he cried, and his eyes blazed with admiration and affection as he pounded Malcolm's shoulder.

Paco fell forward limply and helplessly, as if whatever had been holding him upright had suddenly been severed by the blow of an ax. He lay on the floor, clawing weakly with his fingers at the rocky floor, while queer, liquid noises strained deep in his throat.

"You don't want me to kill him?" Malcolm asked Domingo.

"We will arrange that," Domingo said. "But it was necessary to know you could do it. I have no more doubts."

Malcolm smiled at him. "But I knew the gun wasn't loaded."

"No, you couldn't know that," Domingo said, shaking his head slowly. "You never looked at the cylinder."

Domingo was right, Malcolm realized; he hadn't known, he had only guessed that the gun wasn't loaded, feeling quite certain they wouldn't kill poor Paco anywhere near the Arroyo de Miel. He glanced into the cylinder of Domingo's gun and saw the dull gray noses of five bullets gleaming in their chambers. The chamber in line with the barrel was empty now of course.

Almost of its own volition, it seemed, the gun in Malcolm's hand swung slowly back and forth across the room, and the arc it described enclosed the four men who stood watching him in silence.

"You'd better make sure, Domingo," Malcolm said, and smiled at the frown gathering

Washington Masons where he got the award for distinguished service from the grand lodge of the district.

He sent the Masons by confiding that although a lot of hard things had been said about him "I don't give a dam as long as they can't prove them."

on the Frenchman's face. "But I am sure," Domingo said in a puzzled voice. "I knew you were playing games. Take my word for it. You proved nothing. Shall I kill him now?"

"No," Domingo said. "Then who do you want me to kill?"

The room seemed suddenly cold and Paco's whimpering sobs died away in his throat. He stared with glittering eyes at Malcolm.

"Don't talk crazy," Domingo said, but something in Malcolm's pleased smile, tightened the frown on his face. "You don't have to kill anybody tonight. We understand each other. I know you will do it when I tell you to."

"Supposing I kill you," Malcolm said thoughtfully, and while his tone was pleasant, the smile had faded from his face and the light above him revealed the emptiness in his eyes. "You taught me what I'm worth. You bought a ticket to my execution for a glass of brandy. But you also taught me what you're worth. So why cling to life? I can assure you it's not worth it. Do you want to go on drawing one breath after another until the blubber around your heart kills you? Think honestly, Domingo: do you really want to live?"

Rusk to Ask More Help From NATO

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk flies to Europe today to urge NATO allies to contribute more to the fight against Communist guerrillas in South Viet Nam and to support the U.S. economic boycott of Cuba.

Rusk will attend a meeting of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization foreign ministers at the Hague next week following a visit to Brussels.

On the eve of Rusk's departure, Undersecretary of State George Ball sharply challenged the idea attributed to President Charles de Gaulle of France that the Atlantic Alliance serves the defense of the West and should be preserved but that its organization is a bad idea.

Some U.S. officials said this reasoning could lead to a conclusion that the basic defense pledge of NATO should be preserved but that the military command system should be radically altered and weakened if not actually abandoned.

Ball did not mention France or de Gaulle by name, but his speech at Georgetown University was in some ways the most outspoken discussion of the dangers facing NATO heard in a long time.

"The Atlantic world feels increasingly strong and confident of the future," Ball said. "There is danger that, if this happy

Democrats Have Cause for Concern

By JOHN R. STARR

Associated Press Writer

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — If Democratic leaders seem less than confident about the results of this year's presidential balloting in Arkansas, they may have good cause for concern.

Many who refer to Arkansas as a Democratic state would like to forget that Richard Nixon carried 22 Arkansas counties against John F. Kennedy in 1960.

And a GOP candidate such as Sen. Barry Goldwater, who is popular with Democrats and Republicans in the state, could pose real problems for President Lyndon B. Johnson's supporters this fall.

The talk about a "need" for making Arkansas a two-party state has been misleading. At the ballot box Arkansas was a two party state in 1960. Kennedy polled 193,775 votes, Nixon 165,496. The National States Rights Party, using Gov. Orval E. Faubus as an uncommitted standard bearer picked up 23,725 votes for a total of 189,221 for the combined opposition, or about 2,500 less than Kennedy got.

And Henry M. Britt, a political unknown, carried Washington, Benton and Sevier counties against Faubus and he tied the governor 1,937 to 1,937 in Baxter County.

Six years earlier, when Faubus was running for his first term, Republican Pratt Remmel carried six counties — Arkansas, Garland, Newton, Pulaski, Sevier and Sebastian.

Remmel also ran strong in Jefferson, Union and Washington. Britt made a good race in Sebastian, Garland, Jefferson and Pulaski.

So the figures show the Republicans have not been wiped out, even at the state level, in years when their candidates were not known over the state. Remmel had been mayor of Little Rock but he wasn't a statewide figure. Veteran political writers had never heard of Britt until he filed for governor.

Now the Republicans have a new weapon — a gubernatorial candidate who is known in every nook and cranny of the state — Winthrop Rockefeller.

And most of them are apparently hoping that Goldwater gets the presidential nomination. A Goldwater for president-Winthrop Rockefeller for governor ticket would give the GOP its best slate since 1872 when Elisha Baxter was the last Republican to win a major state race.

The 1960 showing by the GOP was made in spite of an awakened Democratic party organization which for the first time adopted a platform and ran a state campaign headquarters because of all the Republican activity.

A Democratic Party source says now that voting lists are being prepared to show leaders where the fall-downs came in 1960 so that weak spots can be worked over before the general election.

Another party source said leaders are concerned about President Johnson's loss of support in Arkansas because of his unyielding advocacy of the civil rights bill.

Faubus, who said shortly after Johnson took office that the President was extremely popular in Arkansas, said recently that Johnson has lost strength because of civil rights.

Faubus supported Kennedy in 1960 but not with any real enthusiasm. He has indicated he will back Johnson.

Republicans, too, are expected to move in force into the counties where they did well in 1960, trying to seal up the votes state persists for long, some may be tempted to regard the obligations of a massive enterprise such as NATO as unnecessarily heavy, and some of our European friends — out of a sense of newfound confidence — may be led to consider NATO as too much an American show. There is already an apparent trend that way."

Officials said Rusk would welcome any suggestions for improving or strengthening NATO, but he does not expect decisions at the Hague conference on NATO issues.

What he hopes to accomplish is agreement by individual Allied leaders to provide greater assistance to the embattled government of South Viet Nam — assistance in the form of technical experts in transportation, agriculture, and the like and also direct economic help.

In the case of Cuba, Rusk believes that in spite of the recent breakaway of Britain and France from the U.S. policy of economic isolation the Allied governments can still be persuaded to lower the level of their trade.

A British firm has sold buses to Cuba. A French firm sold the Communist country trucks, and more recently another French firm concluded a deal for 20 locomotives.

"DEAR ABBY"

You Can Still Give.

By Abigail Van Buren

Dear Abby: My mother gave me her annual warning speech again this year prior to Mother's Day. It always starts out, "Please don't buy me anything. There's nothing I need." Abby this hurts me. I know my mother doesn't "need" anything but it takes the pleasure out of it for me when she is so ungracious as to reject my gift before she even gets it. Please put a word or two in your column letting mothers know that their children enjoy buying Mother's Day gifts, and they should not be discouraged from doing so.

Dear Abby: I hope that Bill and I never start calling each other "Mother" and "Dad" like some couples we know. And we certainly don't intend to exchange gifts on "Mother's Day" and "Father's Day."

My Mother's Daughter

Dear Abby: I'm wrong, but I always thought that Mother's Day was a day to remember one's own mother. I am my husband's sweetheart, companion, partner and lover, but, by Jove, I am not his mother! I hope that Bill and I never start calling each other "Mother" and "Dad" like some couples we know. And we certainly don't intend to exchange gifts on "Mother's Day" and "Father's Day."

Dear Readers: In my files is this letter, written on Mother's Day by a young prisoner who was awaiting execution San Quentin prison:

"A crime was committed. There was an arrest. And a boy was thrown into a cell. The crime was great, the boy was young and the cell was dark. Life seemed at an end, and hell became a living thing."

"Then one day, as the boy sat weeping, he looked up to see his mother. She was smiling. She opened her arms and said, 'My son, did you think I would not come to you?' Suddenly the boy forgot his terror and found comfort in the magic circle of his mother's arms."

"Through the dark that shrouded the hill of Calvary, a voice cried, 'Son, behold thy mother!' And Mary knelt at the foot of the cross."

"For every son who crucifies himself on pillars of hate, weakness and greed, there at the foot of the cross you will find his mother. Your mother and mine. God bless them, here and beyond. They have known so much pain."

Alaska Rising From Death, Destruction
EDITOR'S NOTE - Associated Press writer Joe Rigert spent several weeks in Alaska after the March 27 earthquake. He visited areas of major damage and interviewed dozens of officials and citizens. Here is his appraisal of the situation six weeks after the disaster.

By JOE RIGERT
ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP)— Alaska is rising from the death and destruction of her Good Friday disaster, North America's greatest earthquake. There are no miracles—only the resolute will of the Alaskan people, their faith in the future, and generous support from fellow Americans.

It is taking time, money and hard work. The people of this state, a pioneering breed familiar with the challenges of a frontier, have bent to the task. Much of the clean-up has been accomplished. Shattered cities are deeply involved in plans to rebuild and even relocate.

Many businessmen have patched up their shops or moved to new quarters. Repairs are being rushed on the lifeline transportation network of ports, highways and the government-owned Alaska Railroad, which link the cities and towns of the south-central Alaska heartland.

Yet the marks of the earthquake and seismic waves remain plainly visible, despite the clean-up and repair. The two battered skyscrapers, the bulk of the J. C. Penney department store, the sunken 4th Avenue area - all can still be seen at Anchorage, the state's largest city.

Down the Kenai Peninsula, the Seward waterfront remains cluttered with twisted track, scattered railroad engines and PITCHING - Juan Marichal, Giants, brought his record to 5-0 and won his 11th in a row over a two-season span by limiting the Los Angeles Dodgers to five hits in a 3-0 San Francisco victory.

BATTING - Wes Covington, Phillies, collected two singles and a homer, driving in five runs in an 11-3 walloping of Cincinnati.

blackened oil storage tanks—the only remains of a once-thriving railroad industrial center.

And throughout the disaster area, damaged or destroyed buildings still offer mute testimony to the terrible force of nature.

The damage estimated from the March 27 catastrophe continues at $750 million, a sizeable portion of the $1.2 billion value of private property in the state. The official Alaska death count has been put at 115.

There has been little actual reconstruction so far - nearly six weeks after the disaster. It takes time to plan for the rebuilding of cities, even when, as in Alaska now, the planners have been doing months of work in weeks.

Even if the plans were completed and the money available, which is not the case, there would be other obstacles to any immediate start on the Alaskan reconstruction.

The short Alaska construction season does not begin until after the spring thaw this month. Cities like Anchorage, Seward and Valdez also must await the results of soil tests to determine what can be built, if anything, in areas where geologists have warned of landslide hazards.

Major rebuilding is being held up in Anchorage until the land has thawed and settled. The city fears the thaw may trigger more slides, upset foundations and cause additional damage.

Finally, Alaskans are waiting to see what aid they can expect from the federal government.

Extension of Relief Program
WASHINGTON (AP) - Sen Edward V. Long, D - Mo., suggested Thursday an extension of the Appalachia relief program to the Ozark Mountains of Missouri and Arkansas.

Long said he has asked president Johnson to inspect the region.

The senator said the poverty in the Ozarks "is much like that of the 10-state Appalachian area."

Star Comics Larger and Easier to Read Today

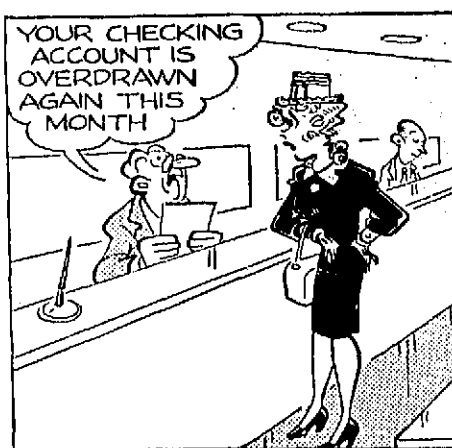

Hope Star publishes 17 cartoons and the crossword puzzle daily — 12 features on this page — and the other five on separate pages.

Our reproduction is the largest offered by the national newspaper feature syndicates. The remaining four-column strips will be increased to five columns as soon as the syndicates make the larger size available.

The Way Grows Much Brighter

When God Gives Us Our Marching Orders

This Page Is Published With The Hope It Will Focus The Attention Of Our People On The Churches Of This Area

My "Mom"

... and how we love her! She is a unique individual. She is personal. She is mother. It is she who tempers us to fit into a big world. She leavens the life she gave and guides its destiny. Mother is the one who is most concerned when the world may rise against us. She is an important factor in shaping the mold from which real men are made. Not one single human emotion comes nearer the divine than does a mother's love for her child. Then, respect her experience, her knowledge, her concern for your life. Listen to her pleadings. Follow her teachings. Accept her guidance... for, in few instances, will she ever be wrong. How fitting that we give this day... the second Sunday in May... in her honor. In respect to her, and to show your deepest concern, take her to church this Mother's Day.

You In The Church
The Church In You
— form a combination for good. Every man, woman and child needs the influence of the church. So, come let us go into the house of the Lord. Let us support her program of service to humanity, be a faithful worker, a daily bible reader and attend services regularly.

THE CHURCHES OF THIS COMMUNITY ARE THE ONLY INSTITUTIONS WHICH HAVE AS THEIR MAIN FUNCTION, THE TRANSFORMING OF HUMAN LIVES. THEY ARE THE SIGN BOARDS POINTING THE WAY TO GOD.

Sponsors of these messages urge faithful church support. Through these pages the appeal is for all men to stand up and be counted... to combat Communism on all fronts... to be faithful to God.

OUR PASTORS ARE GOD'S SERVANTS WHO CALL THE SIGNALS AGAINST THE ORGANIZED FORCES OF EVIL. THEY INVITE YOU TO ENLIST ON THE SIDE FOR GOD...
